Disaster Resilience Education

Disaster Resilience Education (DRE) promotes a vision of young Australians who are empowered to participate as active members in skilled and resilient communities, working to reduce the risk of disaster. DRE equips young Australians with the skills, knowledge, and confidence to take protective action before, during, and after an emergency or disaster.

AIDR Education for Young People Program

The Education for Young People Program fosters the development of disaster resilience education as a vital component in children and young people's learning. The program provides strategic support to the education sector and youth-focused organisations, developing knowledge, skills, and opportunities for young people to participate in community safety initiatives before, during and after an emergency or disaster.

The Disaster Resilience Australia New Zealand Schools Education Network (DRANZSEN) seeks to:

- communicate a shared understanding of DRE connected to international frameworks and relevant to an Australian context
- build the capacity of teachers and other educators to deliver effective and sustainable DRE to young people, informed by contemporary research and aligned with the Australian Curriculum
- facilitate networking and collaboration between stakeholders in the design and delivery of new DRE initiatives.
- provide a platform for youth perspectives, experiences and solutions related to disaster risk reduction and resilience.
