About the Resilient Australia Awards

The Resilient Australia Awards celebrate and promote initiatives that build whole of community resilience to disasters and emergencies around Australia, as well as images capturing resilience in action. The awards recognise collaboration and innovative thinking across all sectors.

Since being established in 2000, the awards have recognised outstanding contributions in each state and territory across multiple categories, which now include: business, community, government, local government, mental health and wellbeing, school, and photography. The awards recognise a wide range of initiatives; with past projects centred on risk assessment and mitigation; mental health and wellbeing; education, training and research; and community engagement, as well as response and recovery.

State and territory award winners are considered for national award categories, along with projects entered directly to the national awards. Projects selected as national finalists will benefit from national exposure through a range of communication channels.

The Resilient Australia Awards is proudly sponsored by the Australian Government in partnership with the states and territories and managed by the Australian Institute for Disaster Resilience (AIDR).

Submissions for the 2023 awards program must relate to projects or initiatives that commenced after 1 January 2021 or demonstrate significant outcomes or enhancements since 1 January 2021.

‘Resilience’ as defined by the United Nations Office for Disaster Risk Reduction \(UNDRR\)

The ability of a system, community or society exposed to hazards to resist, absorb, accommodate, adapt to, transform and recover from the effects of a hazard in a timely and efficient manner, including through the preservation and restoration of its essential basic structures and functions through risk management.

‘Disaster’ as defined by UNDRR

A serious disruption of the functioning of a community or a society at any scale due to hazardous events interacting with conditions of exposure, vulnerability and capacity, leading to one or more of the following: human, material, economic and environmental losses and impacts. The effect of the disaster can be immediate and localised but is often widespread and could last for a long period of time. The effect may test or exceed the capacity of a community or society to cope using its own resources, and therefore may require assistance from external sources, which could include neighbouring jurisdictions, or those at the national or international levels.

‘Emergency’ as defined by UNDRR

Emergency is sometimes used interchangeably with the term disaster, as, for example, in the context of biological and technological hazards or health emergencies, which, however, can also relate to hazardous events that do not result in the serious disruption of the functioning of a community or society.

Frequently Asked Questions

Can I enter the same project in more than one category?

No – each project may only be submitted in one award category, with the exception that an image submitted in the photography category may also support a submission in another category.

My project achieves outcomes in more than one state or territory or is a national project. Which jurisdiction do I submit it to?

Submissions that relate to a national project, or a project where activity encompasses three or more states or territories, should be submitted directly to the National Award category. Where a project encompasses activity in only two states or territories, a 'lead' state or territory must be identified, and the project submitted in that jurisdiction.

This only applies to projects where the activities that make up the project already encompass two jurisdictions – a project will not be considered multi-jurisdictional where implementation in other states and territories is hypothetical. One aim of the awards is to promote projects to encourage their future uptake and adaptation by other jurisdictions.

I entered in a previous year; can I enter again?

If your project or photo did not receive an award (including highly commended), you may submit the same project or photo again – provided it fits the 2023 time period. Entries in the 2023 program must relate to projects commenced after 1 January 2021 or which demonstrate significant outcomes or enhancements since 1 January 2021.

Applications from previous years cannot be transferred – you will need to complete the application process again in full.

How will I know if I am successful?

A jurisdictional convenor will contact you directly if you are an award finalist.

Can I get feedback and/or assistance my application?

Yes, please contact the AIDR Awards Coordinator via raa@aidr.org.au to obtain feedback or assistance.

What do I receive if I am successful?

Each jurisdiction has unique arrangements for their awards – in general, finalists are celebrated at an award ceremony and receive certificates. AIDR hosts the National Award Ceremony – national finalists receive a framed certificate; national winners also receive a trophy. Winners and finalists may enjoy coverage through local, regional, and national media. AIDR will cover travel costs for one project member to attend the National Award Ceremony if selected as a finalist at the national level. In the school category, AIDR will also cover travel costs for one student to attend the National Award Ceremony.

If multiple individuals and organisations undertook the project, who submits the application?

Where multiple project partners are involved, teams must identify a 'lead' individual or organisation to submit the application in the appropriate category. Where multiple project partners are identified in the submission, they will be appropriately acknowledged in communications materials related to the project.

Note, only the lead organisation will receive a copy of any certificates or trophies awarded.

Why are universities not able to apply in the school category?

Universities are encouraged to submit applications in the business category as universities generally operate as a business – the school category is intended for projects that directly benefit or engage a school or student group.

Can I submit a project or photo after the submission closing date?

No, late submissions will not be accepted. Supporting information to accompany completed submission will not be accepted after the closing date.

How will I know if my application has been submitted?

You will receive a confirmation email upon submitting your project or photo through the online platform. If you do not receive a confirmation email, please contact the AIDR Awards Coordinator via raa@aidr.org.au

Can I update my application?

You can update or alter your submission at any stage up until submission close at 5pm AEST on 5 June 2023. After submissions close, you will not be able to make any further changes.

Submission requirements

Projects and photos must be submitted online via the Resilient Australia Awards Platform.

State and territory award categories, and national award categories

Submissions must include:

- responses to the six (6) assessment criteria, outlining how the project makes a positive contribution to disaster resilience (see Assessment criteria) – responses can be written, audio or visual.
- supporting information, photographs, and video footage
- your organisation's logo as a high-resolution JPEG (300-500kB) to be used for promotional purposes if required.

If the submission includes any material where the copyright or intellectual property rights are owned by a third party (including text, images, and multimedia), the project team must obtain permission to include the material from the copyright owner and/or intellectual property rights holder.

Photography award category

Submissions must include:

- one high-resolution (300dpi) photograph that demonstrates what resilience means to you, or resilience in action
- the title of the photograph and the location it was taken
- a response to the question 'what about the submitted photograph demonstrates resilience to you' (300 words maximum)
- names and contact details for all identifiable individuals depicted in the photograph to comply with the Privacy Act 1988.

Photographs must be between 1.5MB-5MB in size and formatted as JPEGs. They must not contain or depict any objectionable or inappropriate content, including dangerous or inappropriate work practices.

Where a photo is submitted by a photographer who is not the copyright owner, permission must be obtained from the copyright owner and their name and contact details supplied. Further, copyright owners submitting photos they did not take themselves must supply the name and contact details of the photographer.

All categories

- any applicants under the age of 18 must have the permission of a parent or guardian to make a submission
- applicants are responsible for obtaining the express consent of all identifiable individuals depicted in their photo or supporting information, prior to submission
- all permissions and consents must be in writing and be provided to AIDR upon request.

Use of images and other multimedia

For any images or multimedia submitted, the copyright or intellectual property owner retains their rights. However, the applicant grants the Australian, state and territory governments and the Australasian Fire and Emergency Service Authorities Council Limited (AFAC), trading as AIDR, the permission to use, reproduce, modify or adapt the images or multimedia for promotional, informational and/or publicity purposes in relation to the Resilient Australia Awards program, credited where practical to the owner. Images or multimedia will not be used in other contexts without the express permission of the copyright owner.

Disclosure and use of application information

In submitting an application for the Awards, applicants grant express consent, to the Australian, state and territory governments and AFAC/AIDR, to make the project information, including photographs, publicly available for promotional, informational and/or publicity purposes in relation to the Resilient Australia Awards program, and showcasing resilience activities via our website/s. Examples of use include (but are not limited to) education, case studies, inclusion on government websites, social media content and publications.

All applicants will be subscribed to relevant AIDR information products.

Your personal information and privacy are important to AIDR, and you can find information about our privacy policy online.
